

Connecticut Hideaway Classical Designer Construction Permit

So what's cooking in the new kitchen?

The kitchen was a long walk and a stairway from the lavish dining room seating 12. The range was diminutive, to match the counter space. Facing such a dilemma, there was only one ideal solution: Adding a new wing to house a new kitchen.

Today, at home in Connecticut, Paris-born designer Robert Couturier and his partner Jeffrey Morgan live elegantly among centuries of antique treasures. Brand new among them is the six-burner, 48-inch gas range and double oven in their new GE Monogram kitchen.
